S and T is presently exploring ways for the national laboratories to participate in HSARPA activities. Homeland Security Institute The Homeland Security Act requires that DHS establish a federally funded research and development center known as the Homeland Security Institute to assist the Office of the Secretary and the S and T Directorate in addressing important homeland security issues that require scientific, technical and analytical expertise. To start the process, DHS, working with the Armys U. S. Medical Research Acquisition Agency Activity ( USAMRAA ) issued an early notice on September 10 seeking expressions of interest and qualifications, which are due today, October 30. The results of this effort will assist DHS and USAMRAA in developing a major solicitation for this activity. Plans call for the staffing of the office to begin November 1 and the formal solicitation to be issued in December....
