Excerpt: .surface permitted strong ocean currents to invade the swamps and cover the beds of vegetation with fine sediment. As the centuries rolled on this layer of sediment became thicker and thicker. A slackening in the rate of sinking of the land may have permitted a second swamp with its tangled vegetation to form on the grave of the first. In time this second swamp also was sunk beneath the water and buried in the silt and sediment of the sea. These various movements of the earth s surface with the resultant growth and burial of great masses of vegetable matter occurred no less than six times over that portion of Iowa indicated in figure 1. As time rolled on, great pressure came upon these buried masses of vegetation from the increasing deposits of sediment over them. It is also probable that as they became more...
