Excerpt: . . . seeking to promote Bible study by men in the churches. That courses, methods and leadership may be constantly improved. 22. For a quickening of interest in the various forms of religious work extension, such as shop meetings, group Bible classes and church mid-week classes. 23. For the college students who have made a fresh start in the Christian life during the fall term, that they may resist the temptations incident to the holiday season. 24. For the thousands of young men whose homes are Christian Association dormitories. For the managers of these dormitories; that they wisely use their fine opportunity to serve Christ among these young men. 25. Christmas. That the gift of eternal life in Jesus Christ may be offered to and accepted by thousands of young men in North America to whom He is now a stranger. For the young men away from home, on this home holiday. 26. For every phase of the movement for clean athletics. That the reorganized Athletic League may prove to be better adapted to meet the growing needs of the Association. 27. Sunday. Praise for the splendid advance already seen in Bible study this season. That it may be accompanied by the winning of many young men and boys to the Christian life: that Bible class evangelism may be extended. 28 That employed officers may to a larger degree be able to discern latent gifts in average men, and...
