Ma1ntenance.--Each white man who has leased land from the Indians, or who has purchased the allotment of an Indian who has died, is required to pay 60 cents per acre per year for ditch maintenance. The system has been operative for so short a time that very little has yet been done in the way of maintenance. The chief item the past year was clearing the banks of the Russian thistles and burning them. If not removed, these weeds break off, blow into the ditch and lodge, clogging the channel and forcing the water to cut around. In some places the curves in the ditch should be flattened or the banks protected by rip-rap. In other places, especially in ditches and laterals that carry little water, weeds have clogged...
